Overview

This session explores the structure and evolution of the exchange and post-trade industry from an industrial organization perspective, with a particular focus on the challenges and opportunities in emerging markets. Participants will examine the capital markets value chain and consider how network externalities and two-sided market dynamics shape industry performance.

Through a combination of conceptual discussion and real-world case studies, the session will analyze the strategic choices available to market infrastructure providers—including regional integration and diversification into new services such as central counterparty clearing. Special attention will be given to sequencing and governance issues relevant for market modernization efforts.
